TRIPOD MOUNT OPERATION

STEP 1. Turn your receiver on, and using the installation menus, determine the heading (azimuth) and elevation for your location.

STEP 2. Remove the compass from the mount. (The metal pipe and antenna WILL effect compass operation.) Using the compass, determine the best location for the mount. The satellite signal WILL NOT go through trees, buildings, etc.

STEP 3. After determining the best location, screw the anchor into the ground. A large screwdriver or piece of pipe through the top loop of the anchor makes this easier.

STEP 4. Attach the elastic cord to the bottom of the mount base, Figure 3.

STEP 5. Set mount over the anchor screw and attach elastic cord to the anchor, Figure 4.

STEP 6. If the compass was removed earlier, reattach it to the mount base. Rotate the mount so the arrow on the mount points north.

STEP 7. Adjust the mount legs until bubble level shows mount is level.

STEP 8. Attach mount pipe to the antenna and tighten. Adjust antenna elevation to the correct setting for your location.

STEP 9. Set the antenna/pipe onto the mount. Connect antenna to receiver.

STEP 10. Using the heading (azimuth) markings on mount base, SLOWLY rotate antenna to the correct heading. If you do not find the satellite, be sure you have entered the correct zip code for your location, and that there are no obstructions (trees, buildings, hills, etc.).

STEP 11. After you have found the satellite, secure the pipe using the adjustment knob.
